

SUPPLEMENT TO

American Journal of PUBLIC HEALTH

Launch of the Vida Verde Co-Op | ENVIRONMENTAL AND OCCUPATIONAL JUSTICE |
The Politics of Plastics | Effective Community Review of Environmental Health Research | High Point Walking for Health | "Pesticides Protect the Fruit, But Not the People" | Is Sleep Adequacy Associated With More Healthful Food Choices? | Health Impacts of Housing Improvement

FREE ONLINE @ www.ajph.org

Special online issue highlights various contributions of environmental and occupational justice projects across the country, including several supported by:

- National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences (NIEHS)
- U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA)
- National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH)

Supplement includes:
30 research based articles, editorials and commentaries from community, government and academic leaders in the field

Supplement supported by the three federal partners and the University of Massachusetts Lowell.

"We felt it was time to build upon the existing body of knowledge of environmental and occupational exposures and communicate these outcomes widely."

Linda Birnbaum, Ph.D., Director, NIEHS, and the National Toxicology Program

